German Lines In Picardy Are Badly Broken By Savage Allied Thrust—Penetration of Enemy Territory Is Eleven Miles—Momentum Of Allies' Drive Seems Far From Spent—Little Artillery Preparation Made

WAR SUMMARY

By Associated Press Leased Wire

The German lines in Picardy south of the Somme were badly broken by the savage thrust of the British and French armies. A wedge has been driven into enemy territory to a depth of 11 miles along the Amiens-Chaulnes-La Fere railroad and early today the British were only a mile away from the Chaulnes-Roy railroad, which runs south from Chaulnes and forms the chief artery of supply for the German troops fighting in the Montdidier sector of the front.

London announces that 14,000 prisoners and guns "too numerous to estimate" were taken in the first 24 hours of the drive. The result of this attack loosed against the Germans on the Amiens front Thursday morning appears to eclipse those obtained by the Germans in the first days of any of their terrific offensives launched during the spring and summer.

So far as the reports show in the fighting south of the Somme the allies are going forward almost without serious opposition. On the north bank of the stream the Germans are holding strong, but they have lost Morlan-court, their stronghold there, after hard fighting.

The French, further south, have had their advance retarded at a number of points, but the towns officially reported as having been reached are evidence that the momentum of the allied drive is not nearly spent.

From dispatches from the battle field, it is evident that the allies attacked the Germans with but little artillery preparation, following the method adopted by General Bing before Cambrai last November.

Armored tanks in great numbers first tore through the German first line. Infantry masses followed, and then, through the gaps, the cavalry and armored motor cars swept into the back areas, surprising the Germans and throwing their whole defense into chaos.

Hardly had the news of the German reverses along the Somme come in when dispatches began to arrive telling of a German retirement in the Flanders section. Loccon, Le Cornet Malo, Quentin Le Petit, Pacaut and Lesart, little villages on the extreme western tip of the Lys salient, have been abandoned by the Germans and are now held by the British. It is looked upon as the carrying out of a German withdrawal from the Lys salient, which has been forecasted.

The positions held by the Germans in Flanders are very low and are dominated by the allied artillery.

Official British Report.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

London, Aug. 9.—14,000 prisoners and guns too numerous to mention, have been taken by the British in their drive south of the Somme, says the war office report today. The cavalry is still pursuing the retreating Germans.

Allies Take More Towns.

"Further progress on the battle front continues. The French have taken Fresnoy-en-Chaussee. British troops are east of Le Quesnel and Caix.

"North of the Somme the enemy is making a vigorous resistance to our advance. There is heavy fighting between Chipilly and Morlan-court.

"The number of prisoners taken by the allied armies yesterday exceeds 14,000 and the number of guns cannot be estimated at this time.

Many Interesting Tales Are Told By Troopers Of Life "Over There"

The following letter from Lt. Sidney Bacharach in France, was received by a Dixon friend:

"Every letter I receive from home asks me if I have ever heard from you, and if so why, in common decency, I don't reply. I am writing you now, not from a sense of duty, because, unfortunately, I have never heard from you, but because I am sure you would like a line or two from an old friend and Dixon boy.

To tell you in a few words what I, as one of the thousands, have gone through since we have been "over here" is a difficult task. We have been busy every minute, I can tell you, and days and nights, Sundays and holidays, are all alike.

Perhaps it was three or four weeks ago we started on a move from a certain part of the front with the fond hope and idea of a rest. That slender hope was soon shattered, for we have been shunted and shuffled around here and there ever since, and rest is as far off as ever.

Since the departure of our second in command I have had charge of the echelon, a train, some of the duties of which I will try and picture.

Imagine an order coming at 10 p. m., saying the whole company will be ready to entrain at a certain point two kilo away at 12 p. m. I have 24 gun carts, ration wagon, water wagon, rolling kitchen, two combat wagons, and two caissons, with 60 head of mules and horses to get under way. As soon as they are started down the

Arrangements Completed For Entertainment At Grounds Tonight

TOWN DOCTOR HERE

Charles Plattenburg Will Tell Reasons For Decline In Populations

"Loyalty to the Home Town" will be discussed at the Rock River Assembly tonight by Charles Howard Plattenburg, for many years a successful newspaper editor who has traveled widely and is an authority on community problems.

In 6956 towns and cities in nine leading states, including 215 county seats, there was an actual loss in population from 1900 to 1910. At least 7000 more towns in these nine states barely held their own, meaning that in those ten years nearly 14,000 of the towns either stood still or lost ground.

Mr. Plattenburg shows that this tremendous loss in population, and the enormous depreciation in real estate values resulting therefrom were brought about: (1) by lack of civic pride, community loyalty or local co-operation; (2) by the tremendous inroads made by the mail order houses; (3) by the constant stream of young men and women from the smaller towns to the great centers. After showing these tendencies in the average town, he discusses the

ATTACK DEVELOPS VICTORIOUSLY—GREAT SCALE

BULLETIN

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

London, Aug. 9 (Battle Front).—More than 17,000 prisoners have been captured by allied forces in the Somme drive up to noon today, according to advices this afternoon. More than 200 guns have also been captured.

The Canadians have taken the town of Beaufort, 2 1-2 miles south of Rosieres.

The Austrians are fighting further north along the Somme.

A small party of Germans are still holding Rosieres, 3 1-2 miles west of Chaulnes, but British troops are all around them and their life as fighting men will probably be short.

BULLETIN

Paris, Aug. 9.—Reports received here up to 11:30 a. m. show that the allied attack south of the Somme is developing victoriously on a great scale. The battle was resumed early this morning and Franco-British forces made favorable progress, reaching selected objectives. Powerful cavalry forces are in action today.

BULLETIN

London, Aug. 9 (Battle Front, via Montreal).—Canadian horse troops, co-operating with the French cavalry, have cut off large forces of the enemy today in the open fighting on the Somme front.

FOURTEEN THOUSAND PRISONERS

By Associated Press Leased Wire

With the British Army in France, Aug. 9.—Allied airmen have blown up many of the bridges over the Somme and the enemy retreat is seriously embarrassed. British cavalry are rounding up many prisoners, but the larger part of the 14,000 prisoners so far taken were captured by Australian and Canadians.

Enormous quantities of stores and ammunition have been abandoned by the Germans in their great haste to retire.

With the British Army in France, Aug. 9 (Reuters).—The Germans are blowing up their own ammunition dumps in the battle area. This is considered to indicate preparation for a retreat.

Casualties are Light.

The British casualties since the beginning of the new offensive are but three-fifths of the number of prisoners that have been counted up until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Destroy Retreating Transports.

This afternoon enemy transport lorries have been rolling along the few good roads left in the Somme valley. They afford excellent targets for allied airmen, who hamper the escaping convoys and speedily litter the roads so as to make them impassable.

Cavalry Far In Advance.

Cavalry patrols, accompanied by swift "whippet" tanks, are pushing far ahead into enemy territory. The infantry in many places appears to be checked only by their sheer physical inability to push farther.

road, spread out at certain intervals so as to avoid one shell, if it strikes, taking the whole thing. I have to beat it on ahead to see how many cars I have, fix cars for men, horses and flat cars for wagons, etc. Then everything has to be loaded, certain men placed in the cars with the mules a job, by the way, I wouldn't like myself, food distributed to the men, and a hot meal started for the next morning on the train.

We may travel a day or so, dismount and march a distance over the road, break into some camp we have never seen before at an unearthly hour, set everything up again like a circus, pull the company into the line, beat it out under some harassing shell fire, etc.

It's a great experience and has its enjoyable moments; i. e., when the mail, papers, and magazines arrive. Everyone is healthy, or if not, it is a survival of the fittest.

Just now we are in a woods in a not inactive part of the war zone, living under the blue sky and imagining we are in Lowell Park.

My thoughts are always with Dixon, not only because of my own dear people, but I have always thought I have my friends there. My best to them all, as well as to yourself.

Co. D, 102 N. G. Bn.

Below are letters and a post card received by Mrs. B. H. Bates received from her son, Private Ernest Bates, who has recently been transferred into the Signal Corps of the 58th Division, now in France.

Somewhere in France
June 24th, 1918

Dear Mother and All:

As this is Sunday and a day of rest will write you a few lines and let you know I am well and hope you are all well at home. It is a beautiful day here. The weather here is about the same as in Illinois at this time of year.

I have been transferred into the signal corps of our regiment, which is considered the best branch of the service.

When we first came to France, we men lived in pup tents, two men in a tent, but we are now living in a town in vacant houses. I wish you could eat dinner (deleted by censor). We are located close to the trenches and can hear the rumble of artillery day and night. Last night the earth shook from the heavy bombardment.

France is a beautiful country, but I do not like the looks of their towns and the ways of the people. I thought the south was a hundred years behind the times, but over here they're a thousand years behind. The stores and houses are made of stone and of ancient design and the pavements are of large cobble stones. The streets are very narrow on the whole and one never sees a straight street like in America. A large majority of the civilians wear wooden shoes and they are sure clumsy looking. Money is not much good to one as you cannot buy much of anything but hard bread and cheese. They don't know what ice cream is here and you see but little candy and that is very high. Have you received any of my mail since I left the U. S.? Have you received my allotment yet? Have you written me a long letter with all the news from Dixon. Tell Eva and Frank I lost their address so can not write them till I get it. Will close with love to all and hope I may see you all before very long.

Your son,
PTE. ERNEST BATES,
Signal Corps, 58th Division, U. S. A.
Infantry, A. E. F.

Somewhere in France
June 30th, 1918.

Dear Mother and All:

This being Sunday, will write you a few lines and let you know that I am in the best of health and hope this letter finds you the same.

The weather is ideal today, which is nothing unusual for France this time of year. One strange thing about it here is, it gets daylight about three a. m. and does not get dark until ten p. m. But in the winter it's dark at four p. m. and remains dark till about nine a. m. They say the winters are cold and it rains and are real busy buying something most of the time.

We boys received our pay Friday good to eat with our regular mess. You think things are high in the States, but you ought to see how they are here. Oranges are 80 cents a dozen. I have never seen any bananas. I paid five francs or one dollar for a can of California apricots. One cannot buy or even see any pie, cake, cookies, or ice cream. The only candy one sees is what we call jelly beans in the states and they sell at 80 cents a pound. Eggs are ten cents each and one can get a quart of fresh milk for fifty centimes or ten cents U. S. money. You would laugh to see us boys in the stores buying, trying to make them understand our wants and pointing our fingers to what we want. The French are very kind to us and they think there is no one like the Sammies.

As to the war, you people in America have no idea what it is. I think if you were as close to the Germans as we, with shells bursting with a deafening sound and airplanes pinging and shooting above, you would then realize what this awful war is like. I have seen many German prisoners taken daily by the Americans. Those prisoners are young boys and old men. In France all one sees in the streets are women, children and old men, as the men fit for military service are off at the front. The women, children and old men do all the work on farms and in the factories.

We men eat our mess in the open and we always have a number of half-starved children about us and we feel so sorry for them we share our mess with them and it would make your heart ache to see these half-starved and ragged kids eat. It's almost supper time now so will close.

With love and regards to all and hope I may see you all soon.

Your son,
Private Ernest Bates,
U. S. Infantry, A. E. F.

France, July 4th.

I would love to be home with you all today to celebrate. Plenty of noise where I am day and night. This is an awful war. Hope I may see you all soon. I saw London and Paris.

Write. Love to all.
Private Ernest Bates,
A. E. F., U. S. Infantry.

Sergeant Sol Williams (colored) formerly of Dixon of Machine Gun Co. No. 3, 370 Inf., U. S. N. G., now on duty in France, writes as follows to Ray Miller, under date of July 21:

I received your kind letter and it was a great surprise to me to hear from you, and as I read it my memory drifted back to Dixon and many a thought of old times passed through my mind and of the old faces I could see in those days that I spent in Dixon. After it all over one of my greatest pleasures will be to come back and be among all my old friends and the scenes of my school days. So you can be looking for me for we will end it pretty soon now; it won't be long.

Yes, old pal, I am playing my little part in the national game of war and you can bet that I will try to do my part "jam up." I would like to meet some of the boys from home while I am here, but wherever they are I know that they will give a good account of themselves as all boys from Lee county will.

Say, boy, we have the best fighters in the world, and the best people at home to stand behind us to the last ditch; so you see how lucky one is to be an American soldier. I was glad to see that some of the boys from home have received commissions; it speaks well for Dixon.

Give my best regards to all my old pals and friends. I am well and feeling fine. You can tell by looking at the papers that we are all busy these days. When I have time I will write you a long letter.

Mrs. Oliver S. Hoover, 221 Graham street, has received a letter from her brother, Lieut. Louis H. James, 322nd Field Signal Battalion, A. E. F., as follows.

I wrote you at one of my former stops since our arrival "over here," but mail service is not so well established yet and you may not have received the letter.

This is Sunday afternoon and the sun is beating down just like it does in old Illinois and it's rather hard to break into it again after ten years in the northwest.

I am "here"—my third stop in France, and nothing preventing will be here a month, going to school; six officers from our battalion are here and four go to the front tomorrow. I was delegated to be one of the four, but I was later detailed to this school instead, and while I am disappointed I feel I need the instruction here. It looks like we were going to get the real thing here.

I am sitting in the Y. M. C. A. officers' club, and say, you don't know what a comfortable and homelike place it is. We have a piano, victrola, movies, writing tables, magazines, books, lounging chairs, etc. And talk about the eats, oh my—and what an appetite. Uncle Sam, the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. are wonders when it comes to taking care of the American soldier. The people in the states cannot realize the enormous amount of work Uncle Sam has been doing, is doing—and he's just started. A few more months, and look out you Hun! This animal has already tasted the calibre of the American fighter and he knows he must take Paris by winter, or never. Of course we know it's never.

Along side of me are bunking some infantry and artillery officers and we have learned a lot of things since we met them. They just got back from the big drive. They tell us how the German is feeling that old American punch already, and they say that German prisoners taken say the Americans are crazy—they won't let them rest a minute. There is nothing more of interest I can think of to tell you, so I will close. Don't look for many letters from me as I will be pretty busy, I guess, from now on; but I will write to some of you as often as I can find time. Don't worry about me, I am feeling fine, excepting some lazy, and couldn't stand to be treated any better.

Orville Egler, also on duty overseas, writes as follows:

In France, June 26.

My Dear Mother:

I received your letter of the 26th of May. Just think, the 15th of next month I will be permitted to wear my service stripe. It is a gold braid triangle affair about three inches long and is worn on the left arm.

Designating six months of overseas service. My pal is to wear two and I surely wish I had entered the service sooner.

I have not made much advancement in my French as I have been staying with an English family.

There was quite a celebration here the Fourth. A very large athletic meet with about a hundred entries.

I am going to try to take my leave the middle of this month and go to the government resort. Everything is found, also transportation. It is in a place a fellow shouldn't miss if he has the chance to go. The leaves stay open for only a short time and a fellow has to be mighty lucky to get away.

There isn't a whole lot to write, for news is mighty scarce and we are not permitted to say a whole lot, which is a mighty good thing.

This leaves me well and happy. This war cannot last forever and I feel it won't last much longer for it is best to live in the best of hopes.

Love to all,
Your son, ORVILLE EGLER

Mrs. Benj. Snyder received the following letter from her son, who is in France:

July 14, 1918.

Dear Mother:

Have started a dozen times to write to you this week but have been awful busy; have been getting up at 4 o'clock all week. Have been on the range all week firing so haven't had much sleep, but will have to get used to that. This is Sunday and have been on guard; the rest of the Battery have gone to town to give a parade. There is a big celebration there; glad I didn't have to go because it is eighteen miles and awful dusty and hot.

Got a letter from Fred yesterday. He says that he leaves for the south to go in training; sure will take some of the fat of him, won't it? I also got a letter from a girl out in Charles City, Iowa, that I used to work with at the L. N. U. She saw my name in the paper and thought she would write to me. Also got dad's. Says that you were not feeling well. That is hard luck. Now mother, don't worry about me because there is no danger and I will be all right. It is not going to be long when they get started and I am not taking any more chances than millions of others and so don't worry. Tell dad I will write him in a few days. I am crazy to get the papers. We hear very little of what is going on in the States.

Give my best to Mr. and Mrs. Cummins. Must close for this time. Will write again in a few days.

Love to all.

From Lee Clayton to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Clayton, before his transfer to Camp Updon from Camp Dodge:

Camp Dodge, July 29.

Dear Folks:

I thought I would write a few lines to let you know that I am still at Camp Dodge, but don't know just how long I will be here as they won't tell us just when we are to leave.

My identification number is 3226296. Be sure to keep that number so if it is given in any paper you will know it is me. Don't worry about me as I am getting along fine. Am also sending home my corporal diploma and I wish you would take special good care of it. I think I have a good chance to be advanced to sergeant after a while if I make good. Looked for a letter from you today but didn't get any.

I sent my grip and things home but you may not get it for two weeks as there were thousands of them sent the same day I sent mine.

Our regimental band is giving a concert tonight. It consists of 60 pieces and can make fine music. Am sorry I didn't have a picture taken, but didn't have much chance only on Sunday and on that day everybody was trying at the same time.

I got vaccinated again last Sunday; that makes the fourth time and it hasn't affected me any yet. I think I am disease proof. It has been nice and cool here the last few days, with a few showers in between times. I got a letter and a box from Warren and Augusta last Friday or Saturday and they said they were home.

Well, I think I will have to quit for the time. Hoping this finds you folks all well as it leaves me, I am as ever, Lee.

LEE CLAYTON,
Company B, 349th Infantry

An interesting letter from Lt. Sidney Bacharach, telling his parents of exciting experiences at the front, is given below:

France, July 16, 1918.

Dear Ones All:

Have received mother's and dad's letters dated up to June 18th and am anxiously awaiting more.

Life these days is mostly a combination of rain, mud and big shells going and coming over us, naturally they are going and coming and not staying, as I have a decided respect for all of them.

Slipped the company up a couple of kilometers the night before last,

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bachrach have received a telegram from the latter's brother, Moritz Rosenthal, announcing the receipt of a cablegram from banker friends in Paris, worded as follows:

"Received visit from Lt. Sidney Bacharach. He is in excellent health. Just arrived from the front."

Lt. Bacharach has been at the front for some time and his parents are naturally relieved to know that he is in Paris for a time resting.

and had quite an exciting time. As I told you in my last letter we are living in a dense wood and when it is dark it is black. Started out with the company, the mules, and ration wagons, and everything went along nicely all the way up, but coming back the whole German artillery as well as the American opened up. On the gallop the whole way, until the wheels of one of the wagons came off. Nice thing to stop and fix. I had to go along a road in front of the American batteries. The concussion of their guns going off would nearly throw me off my horse. Well, we got back, but just before I saw the biggest shell hole I ever hope to see. Without doubt you could drop our whole house in it and still have some room. Everything went well until we got to the cross roads and then it was hell. So dark you couldn't see your hand in front of you. Riding along, a brat hit me across the neck and I had the nicest spill off the horse into the mud you ever saw. Finally got everything fixed up and just got into the tent an dhad a half-hour snooze when some messenger came stumbling and swearing through the woods after me. The Major wanted to see me at once. The place was about 600 yards away and if ever I had a time getting there I surely did then, around creeks, mules, carts, etc. I bet it took me an hour to get there and then he said, "You have to take ammunition to the company at once."

Back I went with the same trouble and finally got things fixed. Then we started for the ammunition and after traveling about all night here and there, found the ammunition had not come in. Took it up last night, however. Some little fun, this train commander job, all right.

When you have to split rations three ways, take it to three different places, and then get hell because there's not enough to eat. Am feeling fine, though, and everyone is as hard as nails.

Haven't a whole lot of chance to write but every chance I get you will hear from me.

Much love to all,
SIDNEY BACHARACH.

Metzler Says The Horses In France Wouldn't Get Henry

"We Holler 'Allay'—They Wouldn't Understand 'Commence' Here"

FRENCH HILL REGION

Privates Hardesty and Bott Have Rejoined Their Batteries Abroad

Sergeant Howard E. Metzler of Dixon, a member of old Co. G, and now with the 123rd Field Artillery, which is part of the 32nd Division, and the Third Army Corps, highly commended by General Mangin of France for its noble work in the Soissons-Rheims battle, writes the following very interesting letter to THE TELEGRAPH:

Somewhere in France, on Active Service with the American Expeditionary Force, July 21, 1918.

Editor THE TELEGRAPH:

Dear Friend—Will drop you a few lines as I promised when I left Dixon on April 4th last, regarding the boys from the old burg. At present we are all in the best of health with the exception of Color Sergeant Roy L. (Hopper) Smith, who had the misfortune of breaking his collar bone while practicing a little stunt that he originated so as to get a job with the Ringling Bros.' circus after the war.

Privates Fred Bott and Guy Hardesty, who were left in the States when we sailed, arrived in camp today and Hardesty was assigned to his old Battery, C, while Bott was transferred into Battery F, Captain Preston's old command.

We are billeted in a very picturesque village in the hill country of France and many are the beautiful sights we find on our numerous hikes in the surrounding country.

We are quite badly handicapped over here for even our artillery horses are French; we have to holler "Allay" instead of Henry Lebowich's "Commence." Our education in Latin comes in quite handy and we are not entirely at sea when it comes to making our wants known.

As yet I have not received THE TELEGRAPH, but it will take some time to get the second class mail straightened out, so I hope it will reach me soon.

Will close with regards to yourself and the rest of friends and submit a parody for your approval by Cpl. Wm. Waddington of old Co. M, but now of Battery C, and myself:

Good Bye Dixon,
Goodbye Dixon, Hello France, Co. G is over there;
They are happy, fat and saucy, hitting the ball for fair;
They get all the sport they want but it's not like at home,
But it's Co. M and Co. G Artillery of the One, Two, Three.

JUST KIDS—The Morning Plunge. By Ad C.

Woman's Morning Sickness—

POOR WOMAN, she is called upon to suffer and carry more than her share of human ills, but the one that seems to most trying and unfair of all is the sickness that comes to her at the time of life when she should be at her best—when even the strength she should have for the carrying out of that of Nature that makes her bring a new life into the world.

MANY WOMEN SUFFER—awfully—terribly during time with a stomach sickness. It is the kind that never can be told in words—the morning sickness of a woman.

Before Baby Comes—

It is one of the most trying tests of human endurance, and all more so because it is so hard to control.

Few remedies can be depended upon to give more or less temporary relief. So many favorable reports have come to us from those who have used EATONIC during this time that it is with the greatest satisfaction we say to ALL SUFFERERS from this peculiar woman's sickness of the stomach, "DO TRY EATONIC—give it a fair trial, GET THE HELP we so confidently feel sure you will get."

The results have been so uniformly good—wonderful in many cases that we say to you, and gladly do we say it, that any poor woman sufferer who obtains a package of EATONIC from any druggist in the city or drug stores anywhere and uses it according to the simple directions if it fails to do the good and give the help that it should—she has to do is to return it to the druggist whom you know and trust and the money will be cheerfully refunded. Remember it costs a penny or two a day to use EATONIC.

SO WE SAY—

Do not ever suffer again

WOMAN SAVED MUCH SUFFERING

By taking Friend's Advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

West Plains, Mo.—"I was all run down in health, had indigestion and terrible cramps every month so I was unable to do anything. I had tried every doctor in West Plains, also every remedy I could think of, without relief. One day when I was suffering greatly a friend was at my house and said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' So I did, and through it, I found relief from my suffering and I really believe it saved my life. It does not seem as though I can say enough in praise of this wonderful medicine for the health it has brought me."—Miss CORA LEE HALL, West Plains, Mo.

Perhaps it may seem an extravagant statement to say that this great remedy saved a life; but women like Mrs. Hall, to whom it has brought health, appreciate the danger and suffering they have escaped too well to doubt it! All who suffer should try it. Why risk life and health without it?

For special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

BRIAN TELLS RUTH WHAT HE EARN—PLAN TO USE IT TO ADVANTAGE

CHAPTER XI.

When Ruth asked Brian for the dollar for Mrs. Murphy, she added: "You better give me a little more; she is coming up to do the dishes."

"How much?"

"Oh, I guess twenty-five cents will be enough for her. There aren't many."

Brian counted out twenty-five cents and added it to the dollar, then handed it to Ruth. Had she thought he would give her more, so preventing her being placed where she would have to borrow from Mrs. Murphy again, she was disappointed.

"Brian," she said, after a pause, "don't you think we'd better sit down together and plan to use your salary to the best advantage, like the young couple in the story?"

"Very well, perhaps it will be the best way."

It was late when they finished. Ruth was too amazed to speak when Brian told her what he earned. Why, she often had paid more for a gown than his entire monthly salary. But she hid her surprise from him. She had married him knowing he was a poor man—how poor, she never had dreamed—and she would do the best she could. So they apportioned their income. So much for rent; so much for food, ice, lights; so much for rough help. The rest they divided in half. Ruth to do as she pleased with her half, Brian to have the same privilege.

"But, dear, we haven't counted a penny for outing or theatres," she said when, finally, they got up to retire.

"No, I guess we'll have to do without many theatres for a while. We'll go to the movies occasionally, and if we do go to the theatre we will each pay for our own ticket."

"Oh, how funny!" and Ruth laughed hysterically. Not that she laughed at him, but that it seemed so utterly incongruous. The idea that she should buy her own ticket, and he his, out of their part of the meagre amount left for clothes, etc., made her hysterical.

"How long do you think it will be, Brian, before you can earn more?" she asked soberly, the next morning at breakfast. She had eaten nothing, neither had she slept. She was beginning to realize that, even though she loved him and was willing to economize, that unless he quickly brought in more money they could scarcely afford to live even in the, to her, little place they now occupied.

"Oh, very soon. I shall get some paying cases before long. There's a man down on Long Island owes me a little money. I'll try to collect that. Is there anything particular you want right away?"

"No, dear, but I've been thinking. You see, our clothes will soon be shabby and out of style. We will have to have new ones. We can't possibly buy clothes on what you earn now."

"Don't cross bridges until you come to them. I don't see but we are pretty well fixed. By the time we need clothes, we'll be able to have them."

Ruth bit her lip and said no more. And not even Brian's complacent because of her improved breakfast could bring a smile to her face.

Brian really meant what he said. He didn't see but that they were being accustomed to luxury, and the pretty well fixed. He never had been accustomed to luxury and neat, simply-furnished rooms, with the dainty muslin curtains at the windows and soft-toned rag rugs on the floor, the comfortable chairs, big table—which after dinner was cleared away, they used as a reading table—seemed to him all that was necessary for comfort. Brian thought a great deal of that his comfort. Had he not, perhaps he might have been more successful in a business way. But "mannana" was always on his lips. Never was he in a hurry to accomplish anything; another day was coming, he would do it then.

He had a very optimistic nature, and a way of impressing people who did not know him, fostering in them the belief that he would accomplish great things. But Mrs. Clayborne had seen the weakness in his character, and had feared for Ruth's happiness because of it.

Had Brian been, or had Mrs. Clayborne thought him, more stable, she would not so much have minded his poverty, and she would have assisted him and Ruth until such a time as they could get along alone. But she sensed his weakness, and felt sure that sooner or later Ruth would wake up to the sort of man she had married and come back home. Not that Mrs. Clayborne thought Brian a bad man. She didn't. And he wasn't, but she did sense his limitations. He was a financial failure—so she thought. And so, after a month or two of life in New York, had Ruth begin to think.

It was so belittling, Ruth thought, to count every penny. Yet, never did she voice a complaint. She went to market in all the bravest of her expensive gowns, carried a basket and bought a little of this, and a little of that, and, as Mrs. Murphy said, "lugged it home."

To say Ruth was happy, would not be true. It would be equally untrue to say she was unhappy at this time. She was still very much in love with Brian; yet she often spent nearly her entire day weeping. Her surroundings, in spite of all she could do, depressed her. She longed for the dainty, beautiful things to which she had been accustomed.

Tomorrow—Mrs. Clayborne sends for Ruth. She has decided to redecorate her living room.

Visited Daughter.
Mrs. John Howell returned yesterday from a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Toffe, of Rock Falls.

The radiators of Warren Badger's and J. B. Williams' automobiles were badly damaged in a collision at the intersection of Second street and Hennepin avenue, Thursday afternoon. The cars came together head-on, crushing the screens of the radiators.

Might Be Better.
"Don't you find your telephone a great convenience?" bubbled Mrs. Lightfoot. "You can sit at home and talk all over town."

"Yes," admitted Aunt Susanna demurely, "it is handy, but it's only a two party line. My sister, Deborah, down in the country, is on a six party line and she can hear the gossip of the whole district."—Telephone News.

A Cheerful Face.
There is no greater every-day virtue than cheerfulness. This quality in man among men is like sunshine to the day, or gentle renewing moisture to parched herbs. The light of a cheerful face diffuses itself, and communicates the happy spirit that inspires it. The sourest temper must sweeten in the atmosphere of continuous good humor.

Y.M.C.A. HUT IS THEIR HANG OUT

Yanks Travel Many Miles to Spend Evening in the Club.

SOMEBODY ALWAYS ON JOB

"Y Guy" Can Be Depended Upon to Get Move On in Emergency—Men Made to Feel Perfectly Free and Unrestrained.

By CLARENCE BUDINGTON KEL-

LAND.

Paris.—Thirty sailors off an American war vessel hired a motor truck and drove nine miles to get to the Y. M. C. A. club in a famous French city. I asked them why.

"Because it's a regular hangout," one of them said, and another added, "Because you get white bread with butter on it, and eggs fried on both sides and coffee with piano accompaniment."

As soon as I broke into the place I found why men would ride nine miles on a truck to loaf there from eight until eleven.

It wasn't the sort of place folks in the United States imagine a Y. M. C. A. to be. It was a sweltering hot night, and the broad front steps were lined from end to end with men in khaki and men in navy blue. They were gassing and smoking until the place looked as if the captain had ordered a smoke screen to help him through the submarine zone.

From the street you could hear a piano doing business and a lot more men in uniform bowling, "Joan of Arc." If the mothers of these boys could have heard that racket their hearts would have dropped off a pound of weight and increased their beat by ten to the second. They sang as if they were glad to be alive.

Right on the Job.

And then somebody busted up the game. A sailorman came in and made the announcement that the driver of their truck refused to take them back to quarters again, and it was a walk of nine miles on a hot night, or a stretch in the brig for them. Gloom descended. Then somebody turned around and bellowed, "Where's one of them 'Y guys'?"

A "Y" guy happened to be on the spot and in a second he was surrounded, not by a crowd of men who were angry or in a mood to demand something, but by fellows who were mighty courteous in an unpleasant situation. That was something worth remarking and it made you sort of glad to be around.

They put the thing up to the "Y" guy and one fellow said sort of bashful-like, "We don't want to act like we were puttin' this up to you. That's your fault, but—"

It was apparent they had gotten the idea somehow that you could depend on a "Y" guy to get a move on him, and the "Y" guy allowed as much.

"Sure, it's up to us," he said, "that's why we're here."

Inside of twenty minutes he was back with a big truck with a red triangle on the side of it. He tucked the thirty sailorman into it and off they went to keep their appointment with their boss.

That, quite likely, is one reason why they rode nine miles to spend an evening in the Y. M. C. A., because they knew somebody was on the job.

Like You Owned the Place.

Another reason is that you don't have to knock, show a ticket, wiggle your first finger or roll over and play dead to get in. You just walk in like you were there to foreclose a first mortgage on the place.

When you walk through the front door you don't run into a lecture hall, though there is one upstairs, and the odor that comes to your nose isn't the odor of sanctity. It's the smell of fried eggs. The cafeteria is the first thing you meet, and if you are wise you get acquainted with it and stay acquainted while you are in this locality, for it is the best and cheapest place to eat in town. I know because I tried several.

The most impressive thing about it is the complete absence of an ostentatious welcome. You just help yourself and nobody says a word. You wander in and eat and wipe your mouth on your sleeve and like upstairs to mess around on a piano or write a letter or play billiards, or to do as you doggone please. You are free. To be able to make a huge number of men feel perfectly free and unrestrained and at home is quite some little accomplishment. I haven't had time to find out how it is done, but the next time I have a party at my house I'm going to try it on. It's the real thing in hospitality.

SURPRISE FOR CHURCH FOLKS
Called an Hour Earlier for Prayer Meeting and Set to Digging Dandelions.

Denver, Colo.—Every member of City Park Baptist church was urgently requested to attend a special mid-week prayer meeting and to be on hand an hour earlier than usual. When the "worshippers" arrived the pastor produced an old case knife for each member, pointed to a church lawn badly cluttered by dandelions and told men and women alike to get busy. At the end of an hour of digging the lawn was clear of weeds.

AN ORGANIZED THRIFT EFFORT.

The State Council of Defense of Illinois has created a Commercial Economy Administration for systematic promotion of thrift, economy and conservation in business throughout the State. Louis M. Stumer of Chicago has been appointed to direct it as State Administrator.

The Commercial Economy Board's field will embrace practically everything that comes under the head of conservation not now specifically covered in the work of the Federal Food and Fuel Administrations and the State Council's food production and conservation committee, through their respective State organizations. It probably will eventually touch some phases of the food and fuel business, such as delivery service.

This new activity is undertaken in response to requests for action on many subjects from the Commercial Economy Board of the Council of National Defense at Washington. From time to time, that body has asked State Councils to take on campaigns for "carry home your purchases," for cutting down Christmas giving and the like, all with a view of saving time, labor and money. Opportunities for this kind of conservation are so many and so varied that the Illinois Council of Defense has decided to create the necessary machinery for systematic and continuous attention to all such questions. Hence, the Commercial Economy Administration.

Mr. Stumer has been chosen to direct the work because of his long experience in merchandising and kindred business, and his patriotic enthusiasm for the task.

A complete state-wide organization of the Commercial Economy Administration is in contemplation. The particular economy problem to be tackled first has not yet been determined, but among the problems which are likely to be put up to Mr. Stumer are the following:

Release of man power and equipment, and savings in fuel and transportation, by more efficient operation of businesses.
Consolidation, co-ordination and restriction of retail delivery systems.

Application of the "cafeteria" plan to dry goods and other retail stores, by establishing self-serving departments.

Substitution of paper napkins for linen in restaurants and hotels.
Elimination of music from hotels and restaurants.

Elimination of traveling salesmen from wholesale and jobbing concerns.

Introduction, through competent experts, of suggestions for efficiency and economy by adoption of labor-saving plans and devices.

Supervision over non-essential building and construction work, both for private and public benefit.

Mr. Stumer expects to get into action at once and to devote most of his time to the work.

CUBANS IN FRANCE

Cuba is not confining her participation in the war to mere good will and indirect help. She is determined to be an active participant, on a self-respecting basis, playing her part according to her ability.

The little island has already helped the allied cause appreciably by her contribution of ships. Her people have given liberally to the Red Cross, and her congress recently voted $2,500,000 from national funds to be distributed among the Red Cross organizations of the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy. She has equipped a hospital unit including 100 doctors and nurses. She has bought Liberty bonds and cooperated in every possible way industrially and commercially. She intends to spend, the coming year, nearly $60,000,000 for war purposes.

It is now decided that Cuba will actually be represented by an army in France. It will be a small one, but important none the less, because it will be the first Latin-American contingent sent to Europe. One regiment from the regular army will soon be dispatched, and other units, made up of volunteers, will be sent if they are needed. If the struggle continues Cuba may eventually send as many as 100,000 men, which would mean more to her than 4,000,000 men mean to us.

And this, as Cuban spokesmen explain, is almost wholly due to gratitude and appreciation for what the United States has done for Cuba. Prussian statesmen, who could never understand why we were so "foolish" as to free Cuba and leave her free, can not be expected to understand this.
Formerly we were fools. Now, they are convinced, the Cubans are fools.

formed the state department that Lenine, Bolshevik premier, recently declared before a gathering of Soviets in Mos-questions, Allied Consul Tchitchiris, commissary of foreign affairs, said the premier's statement need not be considered a declaration of war, but rather a state of defense in Russia,

SCHOOL DAYS ARE NEAR

Teachers and Parents Should Co-operate More Fully Than Before—Fine Paper By An Ohio, Illinois, Woman

The following paper read by Mrs. Mary Loftus Burke, of Ohio, Ill., at a recent meeting of the Ohio Community club contains so much matter valuable to parents who wish to co-operate with teachers in the education of their children that Co. Supt. Miller has asked that it be presented to the readers of THE TELEGRAPH.

I have been invited to present to you the value of co-operation between parents and teachers. Now, as this is a very important matter and one in which I am most interested, you may find me a little lengthy, but trust you will not consider lightly the subject upon which I speak.

Co-operation is not a new idea and at this particular time it is our watchword. The sad plight of our nation shows us only too plainly the value of co-operation, and the very, very unhappy results, when even but a few place themselves in opposition to it. Yes, co-operation has a mighty meaning, and it brings wonderful results. We have co-operation in labor, co-operation in business, co-operation in capital, county co-operation, state co-operation, national co-operation, co-operation for food conservation, co-operation in the home, and everyone here today knows that the home wherein co-operation does not exist is in discord most of the time. Yet it is really surprising how little co-operation exists between the parents and the teachers of our public schools. Here the teacher is not only required to stand and work alone in her brave endeavor to make honest, honorable, intelligent, useful citizens of your children, but very often is expected to do all this handicapped by the most absurd and unreasonable opposition. At present we have very efficient teachers in our schools, due largely to the fact that the examinations for certificates have been made so very difficult, and it is well that this is so, for it gives us teachers who have either passed these very difficult examinations or those who have had normal training. Therefore when we consider that the average teacher has spent at least fourteen years of her life in preparation for her work, do you think we should expect her to tolerate impudence and defiance from ill-mannered children? No, indeed! Neither should we expect her to teach in a dilapidated school building, with no charts, no maps, no globe, no book cases, no books, poorly heated, poorly lighted, poorly ventilated. Personally I consider it an insult to a self-respecting, refined, educated young woman to ask her to accept such conditions. Positively it does seem to me—I am speaking of the rural schools in particular—most amazing, that parents give so little attention to the school in which their children spend their best days. They know it stands, and has stood for a number of years on a certain corner of a certain section, and that some time back they elected as director Mr. So-and-So, who knows little or nothing about school work and has no time to devote to school affairs, and who is not at all interested in or in sympathy with what he calls these new-fangled ideas. No doubt he will also say they are all foolishness. "Why, I never started in school until after corn picking in the fall, and I quit before planting time in the spring, and look at me. I am monarch of all I survey. Look at the fine farm land I own, and it was never necessary for me to have the light shining over my left shoulder, to be able to figure how many square rods in an acre. If they teach the children to read and write and figure, they'll make out,—I did." Yes, perhaps they will make out, and perhaps they won't. That man did not make out because of the fact that he was not educated, but rather in spite of the fact, and times have changed since he was young. The opportunities which then existed and of which he took advantage no longer exist. We must keep up with the times, and the only way to keep up is to learn what is happening and get in line, or better still, anticipate what is going to happen and be prepared for it, and I assure you that the very best way to accomplish this is through organization and co-operation.

The Great Almighty knew the value of co-operation when he erected the universe. We behold the heavens with myriads of stars. The moon peeps alluringly from behind the soft fleeting clouds, while the earth rapidly revolves on its axis to bid good morning to the warm, life-giving rays of the sun. We see the snow-clad peaks of majestic mountains co-operating with the thirsty earth below. We gaze out upon the ocean and we marvel at the wonderful co-operation existing between it and the mighty continents whose shores the waves caress. Yes, we are awed by the surprising greatness and grandeur of it all. But wait,—far greater, far grander than all this, more wonderful than all else wonderful, which the good Lord has created is your child, God's gracious gift to you. His body is yours to nurture and develop; his mind is yours to cultivate, and his soul is yours to save. Mothers, a wonderful bond of love and sympathy exists between you and your child, making it much easier for you to govern and train that child than it is for anyone else to do so. Yet often we hear mothers wishing their children were old enough to enter school, remarking at the same time that she cannot do anything with them. Well, if a mother cannot do anything with her own child, how very unreasonable it is to expect that a teacher can. The mother has had the child during the most impressionable years of his life, and if she has neglected her duty by taking the path of the least resistance, it is only reasonable to expect that that child will be a disruptive influence in the school. Yet most often those are the very mothers who register a complaint against the teacher because their dear little angel child has not been given a fair show.

Now I do not mean to say that the teacher is always up to the standard. Occasionally we may have a slacker. If so, the very best way to become cognizant of the fact is by visiting the school, or better still, by forming a parent-teacher club in your district and meeting at least once a month for the purpose of discussing school problems just as we have here today. It will be a mental stimulus to you, a help to the teacher and of untold benefit to the children, and as I have said, if it so happens that your teacher is below par, you shall have the advantage of organized influence, and with your recourse to the ballot, can elect as directors those better qualified to judge competency in a teacher. Some parents never visit the school, and if the teacher writes them a note of complaint, they reply to it antagonistically, such as a mother did of whom I shall now tell a story.

Once a teacher, at a loss to know what to do about little Johnnie, wrote a note to his mother, which read:

"Dear Madam: I wish you would give Johnnie a bath. He doesn't smell very sweet." And the next day she received the following reply:

"My Johnnie aint no rose. I send him to school for you to learn him, not to smell him."

We often hear it said that woman's place is in her home, and that if she stays there and attends to her own affairs, she will have all that she can do. Now that would be fair enough if her own affairs would only stay in the home with her, but her children, who mean more to her than anything else in the world leave for school at an early hour in the morning and do not return until late in the afternoon, and if it is not a mother's affair to know something about the teacher to whom she entrusts her children for at least six hours a day, I don't know whose affair it is. If a mother is not concerned as to the physical comfort and well-being of her children during these hours, she most certainly should be.

Now I think I have said quite enough to bring home to you the value of co-operation between parents and teachers, and I most sincerely trust that I have presented the matter with an effectiveness which shall, before the close of the present school year, assure to every district in the county the proud boast of a parent-teacher's club.

Cushing. Eighty-eight men were notified and nearly all reported. A few were absent with good cause, and with leave. Those who were absent without leave must answer to the local board for non-appearance.

The training is compulsory, the order for the training having come from the ar department. No registrant of class one, whether certified for general or limited military service, can be absent except in case of sickness or necessary absence. The drill will be held every Thursday evening.

Hearing Next Week. The men who were absent without leave last night will be notified to appear before the local board at the court house early next week.

THINK DESERTER MAY BE IN HIDING HERE

LOCAL AUTHORITIES DIRECTED TO ARREST WALTER M. WILDER.

The Local Board for Lee county has received the following telegram: "Arrest Walter M. Wilder, who was apprehended by Sheriff Phillips June 2. Deserted from Pontiac board. Left here July 7 for Dixon, in uniform."

F. B. EASTMAN, Major, Inf. U. S. A.

Wilder was arrested in Dixon early in June and later turned over to the military authorities as a deserter. If he is back in this community now the local authorities have been unable to find him.

His earlier arrest, and subsequent surrender to the military authorities as a deserter was the trouble over which a suit has been started in the local courts by City Police Officer Ed. Whetstein against Sheriff Phillips, in which Whetstein claims he is entitled to the $50 reward Phillips collected from the government, Whetstein having made the arrest.

TAX ON LEASED WIRE WRITTEN INTO BILL

Washington, Aug. 8.—Tax of 10 per cent on amounts paid for leased telephone and telegraph lines, including press associations and brokerage circuits, a horse power tax on autos, and a doubling of the tobacco taxes of the present law, instead of higher range rates previously agreed upon, were written into the $8,000,000,000 revenue bill today by the house ways and means committee.

Kitchin Answers McAdoo

Chairman Kitchin, in a statement issued tonight, replied to the telegram of Secretary McAdoo favoring retention of the present excess profits law and a flat 80 per cent war profits tax as an alternative, according to the greater revenue likely to be raised in each corporation's case.

Kitchin's statement indicated that the committee will retain in substance the dual or alternative plan.

May Split Tax Payments

Provision for payment of income and excess profits taxes in three installments was also developed by the house ways and means committee.

The dates of payment suggested are March 15, June 15 and Sept. 15, with the added provision that any corporation or individual who pays the whole tax by March or June shall receive a discount of 1-1/2 per cent on the portion paid ahead of schedule.

The plan is a concession to big corporations, officials of which contend the present plan involves too great a strain and forces excessive borrowing.

ALL ENLISTMENTS IN ARMY AND NAVY HAVE STOPPED FOR PRESENT

Voluntary Enlistments Suspended Until New Draft Measure Is Passed

FOR AID OF INDUSTRY

Military Officials Take Action to Avoid Industrial Snarl

Washington, Aug. 8.—Voluntary enlistment in the army and navy were suspended completely today to prevent disruption of industry pending disposition of the bill proposing to extend draft ages to include men between 18 and 45 years. Orders were issued by Secretary Baker and Secretary Daniels directing that no more voluntary enlistments be accepted until further orders.

The orders also exclude civilians from appointment to officers' training camps until further notice.

Wilson Visits Secretaries.

The orders were issued after a conference between Secretaries Daniels and Baker and were made public after President Wilson had visited the offices of both secretaries late in the day.

The war department's action was announced in a statement from Secretary Baker, which said:

"The war department today has suspended further volunteering and the receipt of candidates for officers' training camps from civil life. This suspension will remain in force until the legislation now pending before congress with regard to draft ages is disposed of, and suitable regulations drawn up to cover the operation of the selective system under the new law.

"This action is taken in order to prevent the disruption of the industry of the country and the impairment of the efficiency of the various governmental agencies which would follow the indiscriminate enlistment of men up to the age of 45."

Navy Has Enough Men

Secretary Daniels in issuing an order to the chief of navigation and the commandant of the Marine corps to refuse acceptance of enlistments, made this explanation:

"The large increase in enlistments in the navy and Marine corps has made it possible to suspend further enlistment until pending legislation affecting the draft for the army is disposed of. When it is resumed, it will be in full co-operation with the war department under arrangements which will secure all the men needed for both services.

Advised by Allied Council

In connection with the proposed extension of the draft age limits Secretary Baker said the enlargement of the American army program was decided on in accordance with recommendations of the military section of the supreme allied war council at Versailles.

He added that a new appropriation bill covering increased army expenses to accompany the draft age extension measure was nearly ready for submission to congress.

In further discussion of the draft regulations Mr. Baker classed news gathering as an indispensable industry, but added that a particular man's relation to that industry depended on the facts in his case and the possibility of replacing him.

About 15 Men Absent From Drill Last Evening Must Give Reason Why

Nearly 15 men who failed to respond to the call for military drill at the armory in Dixon last evening are due for a warm session before Chairman Dixon of the local board. ## PLANT MORE WHEAT AND RYE

Lee Co. Soil Improvement Assn. Issues Bulletin to Farmers Showing Need of Increased Acreage To Those Grains

Considerable injury has been done to the grain crops and some injury to the corn crop in Lee County by the army worm. Near Lee and Paw Paw a number of fields of oats have been entirely ruined by the army worm, and in some cases they have traveled into the corn and done considerable damage there. Near Walnut a number of fields have been injured and reports show that some injury has been done in other parts of the county.

The army worm belongs to the family of cut worms, is brownish green with yellowish stripes, 1-1/2 to 2 inches long. Until fully grown, they are ravenous eaters and when found in great numbers the champing of their jaws can be distinctly heard. When a field has been devastated and the worms are not full grown, they will travel to another field in regular army formation, which gives them their name. This fact may be made their undoing if a farmer is careful to stop their movements by plowing a furrow in front of them and, by digging post holes every few feet in the bottom of the furrow many of them will fall in the holes and can be killed, and in this way further attack can be utterly stopped. Oscar Berge and other farmers near Lee, Fred and Henry Knetsch near Paw Paw, and A. J. Keithahn near Walnut all used the furrow method with more or less success.

There is only one destructive brood each year, and while the army worm is with us every year, seldom do they do great damage to crops. A natural means of keeping the army worm in check is a parasite resembling a house-fly, which lays its egg on the worm, the egg hatches on the worm, which burrows into the worm and kills it. Examination showed as high as 75 to 80 per cent of the worms infected with eggs of this parasite. Other enemies of the army worm are toads, skunks, birds, and in addition a number of other parasites. Were it not for the natural enemies of these worms no doubt the crops would be taken much more often if not every year.

Some interesting photographs of the work of the army worm can be seen at the office of the Lee County Soil Improvement Association.

In current bulletin No. 117 the Lee County Soil Improvement Association urges the planting of more rye and wheat this year. The bulletin says:

Lee County should have more fall wheat and rye sown this year. A small acreage on each farm will increase bread stuffs, distribute labor requirements, and should return as much profit as other crops. There is, of course, a chance of winter killing, but we can greatly overcome this difficulty by careful methods. Do not sow wheat after wheat. If sown after oats or barley, disc the stubble ground, plowing early five or six inches deep, harrow immediately, double disc by lapping half, narrow and roll, and drill 1-1/4 to 1-3/4 bushels per acre. Wheat should be sown from September 20 to 25th, which is usually late enough to miss the hessian fly. Some of our members have had fine success sowing wheat in standing corn, using a one-horse drill. Others drill wheat on corn ground where it has been removed for the silo. In this case it can be drilled without further preparation. For fall wheat Turkey Red is probably the best variety. Thoroughly reclean and fan the wheat and treat with formaldehyde, at the rate of 1 pint to 30 gallons of water for 50 bushels of wheat and keep covered for from 2 to 4 hours only. We have names of a few parties who have good wheat in Lee county.

For fall rye, secure seed as free from ergot as possible and the best grade of seed obtainable. We have a sample of white rye at the office that can be secured from Mason county at $2.05 per bushel in carload lots 1. o. b. Mason county; 40 bushels at $2.25 per bushel; smaller orders at $2.50 per bushel, bags extra in all cases. This price subject to immediate acceptance. If you are interested in securing good seed advise this office at once and if a carload is needed arrangements can be made for ordering, otherwise orders can be filled for smaller lots. Do not delay if you want rye. We also have the names of a few parties who have good rye in Lee county.

Lee County Fair, Aug. 27-30.

Don't forget to bring your best products to the fair and help to keep the Lee county fair at the head of the list of agricultural fairs. Special prizes are being offered for the best exhibit of boys' and girls' club work, including pig, calf, poultry, canned fruit and vegetable, garden and garment making exhibits. For information see pages 75 and 91 of the fair catalog.

At a meeting of the executive committee held August 6 it was decided to have association headquarters at the Lee county fair and to make an exhibit of association work. We will be located in a tent near the educational building and will be glad to have you make our headquarters while at the fair. It was decided at a previous meeting of the executive committee to postpone the farmers' picnic for this year, and we urge you to let the Lee county fair serve in its place.

means and methods that have been successfully used to counteract them. During his lecture Mr. Plattenburg tells numerous stories. His lecture is filled with plenty of wit, enough to make the evening pass quickly, and yet give his auditors plenty of good and wholesome food for much thought.

Mr. Plattenburg is a wonder in his line.

Patriotic Pageant.

Miss Knapp is now ready for her entertainment this evening. The program will be a big feature of the day's program. It must be seen and heard to be appreciated. The children have been thoroughly drilled and the pageant will carry plenty of patriotism and "pep."

Paramount Entertainers

Today's program has several entertaining musical programs. The Paramount Entertainers gave a splendid program this afternoon and will render another excellent program this evening. Each member of the company is an artist.

Loose Lecture Pleases.

Harry Loose, Chicago detective, pleased a large audience Thursday afternoon with his lecture, "Crime—Its Cause and Prevention." Many declared it the best lecture here this session. Loose is a pleasing talker and knows how to handle himself on the platform. He gave an interesting account of crime and criminals in Chicago. Loose is a great detective. He has been shot and stabbed several times. All his ribs on one side of his body were broken; he has been in hospitals for months, and in concluding his remarks, he informed his auditors that he reason he is alive today is because he always lived a clean life.

Perhaps the most interesting portion of his lecture was his description of women criminals in Chicago. He told how a shoplifter works and why she steals. He told about fences to whom the shoplifter sells her goods. Mr. Loose used up most of the afternoon because the Giles Co. did not put on a program, on account of their baggage being delayed. The members of the company were on the grounds and listened to the lecture by Mr. Loose.

WHITESIDE BOYS IN KICK TO FREEPORT

Farmers in Neighboring County Declare Drill Is a Hardship

INVESTIGATE MATTER

The Freeport Journal-Standard, in its writup of the proceedings of the Fourth District Appeal board at Freeport, has the following to say regarding Whiteside county objections to preliminary military training, such as is being carried on in this county. No Lee county men have objected to the drilling order:

Several weeks ago cards were sent to every class 1 man in Whiteside county, signed by the local board of that county, which read that "You must report for drill." The cards were mandatory and the young men commenced to report. This ruling of the local board inconvenienced many farmers inasmuch as when they were to report they had to leave their work early, some of them having to go 20 miles to drill. If they missed a train at night out of Sterling they would not be able to get back home until the following noon, that breaking into their routine of work and slowed up farming on many farms. Complaint was made to certain authorities and yesterday the question was brought to the attention of the district board, one of the cards of instruction being presented to the board. The matter will be presented to the adjutant general of the state at once and detailed information will also be presented and doubtless the initial military training of the soldiers to be will have to await a time when the men are inducted into the service.

Order from Washington

Dixon—In an interview this morning Chairman Henry McDuff of the Lee county board stated that the reason the class one registrants in Lee county are being ordered to drill is because the local board has received express orders from Provost Marshal General Crowder to that effect. He stated that the order had come in a general bulletin, which had evidently escaped the attention of the Fourth District board.

Assembly Notes.

Ray Swan, the sailor lad, who has been the guest of the Nachusa Orphanage people at the Assembly for a week, left today for Brooklyn to report for sea duty. He leaves the first of next week for a trip across the sea. Mr. Swan has made four round trips across the Atlantic on a transport.

Happy in Spite of ? camp is a resting place for Dixon young people after the programs each evening. The young ladies of the camp always serve delicious refreshments and render lively music on the Victrola. The girls last evening hung a sign in front of their camp and later there will be an appropriate program of songs, etc. During the day the mothers of the girls and friends not of tender years, call to pay their respects. The girls composing this happy camp are Misses Orleans Newcomer, Enid Wicher, Gladys Kenaga, Charlotte Campbell, Goldie Brierton, Leota Rice and Margaret McTague. On dedicatory night each girl will have a part in the exercises. By special request Byron Brooks will sing. Mr. Brown of Prophetstown will whistle, "Jack" Byers will give impersonations, assisted by Miss Campbell. Miss Brierton will relate her experiences "at the front," Miss Wicher will read an essay on "Why Mother Let Me Camp," and Miss Kenaga will give several special readings. She will read, with Victrola accompaniment, "Sweetheart, I Believe It's Time To Go." Miss Rice, the favorite soprano, will sing "Blackstone, Oh, How I Love Thee." Miss McTague will read "The Charm That Camp Life Has for Me." At the close of the entertainment there will be a grand finale "Is It Wrong to Keep the Folks Awake When They Want to Sleep?"

The girls have made a promise that the entertainment will close at 11 o'clock sharp and that during the exercises the soft pedal will be used. Miss Newcomer will be "matron" in charge and will direct the chorus. The night watchman will be served at the "rear door" of the camp, providing he keeps mum.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES AID FOOD WORK

That there would be fewer penalties for violations of government food regulations if people would make more use of the public libraries is the belief of the United States Food Administration.

Do you know the amount of sugar you are entitled to use a week? Do you know how to secure your allotment of sugar for preserving? Do you know the kind and amount of wheat substitutes you must purchase with your wheat flour? If not, your public library can furnish this information.

In addition to valuable works on all subjects from planting crops to the gathering and preservation of them, public libraries can furnish information on food and its regulations which are of vital interest to everyone.

Most Illinois libraries are supplied with government bulletins on food subjects such as substitutes for articles formerly thought indispensable, methods of preparing dishes in novel manners and preservation of fruits and vegetables.

Teach Use of Substitutes. While the government is, during the war, regulating and controlling food in a manner never before contemplated, it is also aiding the public in finding the usefulness of various materials which have heretofore been but little used, and which, in many cases, are better and cheaper than the products previously employed for the same purposes.

For instance, a large manufacturer of ink was using many thousands of pounds of sugar in making the same. His supply of sugar being entirely cut off, he was compelled to find a substitute and was aided by the government in finding a satisfactory substitute which, also, was much cheaper than the sugar, while serving the same purpose.

If you have any such problem as this, go to the public library and you will undoubtedly be assisted in solving the same.

If you should desire to make a "fireless cooker" or an "iceless refrigerator" to raise poultry or hogs, or even bees or Belgian hares in your back yard; to dry vegetables, or store them; to salt fish or pickle meat; to do all manner of canning or preserving; to know what to do for the infant's welfare, or how to feed the family satisfactorily on the "substitutes" for meat, wheat, fats and sugar, in fact, to do almost anything to promote or conserve the national resources, your "home library" will be glad to give you the information to read, or the address of the college to which you can write for free literature on the subject.

YOUNG WOMAN AND HER PART IN WAR

Female Helpers Find Many Ways to Aid Government.

MUST ECONOMIZE IN SKILL

Splendid Opportunities Await Those Who Are Anxious to Assist—Should Be Able to Do Something Specific.

By MARY AUSTIN.

(From the Committee on Public Information, Washington, D. C.) What shall she do, the young woman at home, who is neither the mistress of the house nor a wage earner? How shall she turn back to the general account the care and schooling she has had, and how satisfy the hungry desire to serve her country, which is, thank God, as characteristic of our young women as our young men? Every hour since the war my telephone has been ringing with questions like these.

Young men are captained and generalized. Expert supervision of their patriotic service is at their elbows. They have the splendid inspiration of togetherness, music, banners, shoulder touching shoulder. Even wage-working women have a sense of direction; they see the work that passes through their hands pushed steadily to an end. But the young woman of brains and education and leisure must captain herself. She must find her own job herself.

It is all very well for mother to knit and roll bandages in her spare time, which by that process becomes time saved. And though it is no doubt highly patriotic to save food at the expense of time spending, after all, household economics can only be practiced by those having houses. Red Cross nursing is a privilege of the fit; and requires a long training which few can either physically or financially afford. All these special duties leave a wide margin of capable women who ache to serve.

In France and England the lone woman had no problem, unless it were the difficulty of deciding which of the many things to be done were to be done first. But in America labor leaders have warned against clogging the wheels of war industries with crowds of unskilled women who know none of the necessities of the wage earners. This is the wage earners' opportunity also, and no excess of zeal on our part should rob them of the chance to carry, as they are, the national burden. But that does not mean that strong well-educated young women shall have no part in this war but the traditional hand-wringing from the balcony.

Capacity Going to Waste. The first condition, however, of the young woman's getting a specific thing to do is for her to be able to do something specific. There is a great deal of useless capacity going to waste in every community—waste of talent and waste of skill. And it is being wasted largely because we have, as a people, fallen a little into the weakness of democracies, and imagine we can do nothing by ourselves. We think of something which seems desirable to have done, and we rush out and organize vast machines for cleaning the streets, when all that was really needed was to sweep out our own front yard. Women who wish to fill a place in the plans of the government must first trim themselves into some definite shape, as clerks, as secretaries, as mechanics, or what not.

The trouble with much of our American life is that it has made us like those cooks who can cook delightfully only so long as they have an unlimited amount of the most expensive materials. We have come to think that we can do very little of anything without the most expensive teachers and pedagogic equipment.

But it is not only in food that we must economize now; we must economize in skill. In every community of 3,000, or even less, there is enough neglected skill to turn all of its unattached young women into first-rate workers. Take your town bank, for instance. There is an expert accountant there, probably eating his heart out because he is too old or physically unfit for field service. He would be happy to pass on his thirty-five years of experience to you, to be used as the government is going to have to use women accountants.

In your father's store, very likely, there is a man who could make a book-keeper out of you in three months, and have the thrill of patriotic service at the same time. If there is a Carnegie library in your town, there is somebody there who can teach you card cataloging and filing. If you are fortunate enough to live at the county seat your opportunities for learning clerical work are greatly increased. Typewriting you can teach yourself. Learn the touch system and how to make clean carbons. A textbook comes with every machine, and if you cannot afford a machine, borrow one, or club together with two others and rent one for $3.

Many Other Opportunities. Indexing and filing are both in demand in all departmental work; though it will not be so easy to find opportunity for learning them in towns under 10,000. But typewriting can be learned even in the rural districts. A few hours from an obliging local operator, a good text book, and a small Morse outfit which can be set up between two farms, will carry you a long way toward proficiency. And the code, and everything you learn about electricity, would be of use to you should an opportunity come your way later to learn wireless telegraphy—a work which is peculiarly adapted to the sensitive woman.

The government has already opened the motor transport service to women. If this appeals to you, begin to fit yourself for it now. There are a great many varieties of motor transport service, but even if none of the more dramatic opportunities come to you, there is an important service ahead of women in driving tractors.

If a woman has any gift for it at all, mechanical draftsmanship is very much worth while. Government construction plants employ many draftsmen, and you would be surprised to find how much of this you can learn from your local architect or from any manufacturing plant near your town.

Long before technical schools were established men learned all they needed to know by apprenticeship, and the plan I propose to you is simply to revert to the earlier, simple method. Apprenticeship to your chosen trade in the person of the most skilled workman you know. If you do not know how to choose, make a census of the skills of your town. Find out the most valuable skill and save that for your country.

One of the terrible things about war is the loss of this accumulated skill. Men spend years in school and years more in practice, and then at their most useful time are cut off. Make it your business to capture and retain some of the things that men have learned. Nobody will refuse to teach you. A man owes his knowledge and skill to his country as much as he owes his life; all the more if he loses his life.

Can Learn at Home. Women are the natural conservers of civilization. It is our duty to gather up and hold fast every bit of gain. Women are only just learning what it costs men to be proficient, and even if there is no definite objective in view, we could not go far wrong in attempting to save something of the proficient man's purchase. I have spoken of these particular occupations as being directly connected with the government machine, realizing something of the hunger of women to be identified with it as men are. There is a sense in which any work which releases a man for the front is government service; but I have particularly wished to point out how women may fit themselves for national service in their own homes. There are other things than these, new openings every week, things which can be mastered on the farm or in the smallest village. You do not, for example, have to go out of your own town to learn how to be a postal clerk.

There is in every town a good job for somebody in keeping in touch with the needs of the government machine. If you can do nothing else, be the co-heritor; find out your state officials and from Washington all about the qualifications, the dates and places of civil service examinations, the jobs for which no examination but merely a certificate of fitness is required. See to it that your circulating library has such books as are needed by students. If your state has a traveling library, know what helps it can give. There is no real reason why any American should not be able to learn anything he—or she—puts her mind to.

There is another branch of patriotic service which, though it has not been departmentally opened to women here as in England, is open through communities and committees to American women. This is the branch of the commissary. It includes all sorts of knowledge supposed to be native to the genius of women, of food buying and storing and cooking on a large scale. The basis of commissary work is a natural aptitude for it and a knowledge of food values. This you can teach yourself at home, making a laboratory of your kitchen. The rest you can learn through community activities in your town, community storehouses, community kitchens, community canning clubs and buying clubs.

Demand Exceeds Supply. The department of agriculture can supply you with information on the conduct of all these enterprises. Already the demand for instructors in these branches exceeds the supply. And if the war should surprise us by the years it holds out, there is no doubt many of them will be made a part of the government machine, just as they have been abroad. In that case the women who will be chosen are the women who had the initiative to prepare themselves long in advance of the necessity.

Food production is as important as food conservation, but it can be learned only by those who have a certain amount of capital at their disposal, lands or tools, or stock. All the things I have mentioned call for very little more than the personal equipment—industry, patience and staying power. And this war is different from other wars for women, simply as it uses more of these qualities than any other. Wives and mothers have never lacked opportunity for war service, but this war calls for qualities in women which transcend her sex and establish her social value on her power to do, rather than on her power to give. More than any war that was ever fought, it is a lone woman's war. Women have played the part of scabbard for the sword, they have been the belt which binds it to their sons; now comes the day when the woman must be herself the sword. Nobody who knows American women can doubt that the occasion will find them well tempered, swift and keen.

AMERICANS MUST KEEP CHEERFUL AND HAPPY

Ralph Bingham Says Germany Would Be Pleased To See U. S. "Mope"

FOSS MADE ADDRESS

The American reputation for love of humor was maintained by patrons of the Assembly in their large attendance last evening and hearty appreciation of Ralph Bingham's contribution to the series of superb programs of the week. This entertainment might be termed the quintessence of wholesome mirth.

The initial part of the program of the evening was a half-hour concert by Mrs. Bingham's company known as the Christine Giles Co. This was first class and well received. Mrs. Bingham's vocal solos proved her remarkable ability in interpretation of music. Her supreme achievement was a solo to which she furnished the violin obbligato.

The other two members of the company rendered flute and piano solos in an artistic manner.

The concert pleased so well that all regretted that the trio's failure to make train connections prevented giving the afternoon program.

Dolph Bingham's program consisted of wholesome humor, served in appetizing ways, as he styled it "a miscellaneous program, not 'messylaneous', because it's only messy in spots."

His first variety he termed accumulative humor—a continued discourse of jokes made by punning.

The next feature was Billy Johnson and his one tune, Hot Time. By a clever variation of phrases, attention to staccato notes, the allegros and andantes, and a proper manipulation of the loud and soft pedals, Mr. Bingham demonstrated on the piano how Billy Johnson made a hit in a new town by playing his one tune, "Hot Time," as an organo voluntary at church, as a classical selection in a drawing room, a rag-time piece in the same drawing room, and a funeral march. He next exercised his skill as a musician in his rendition of the Sextette from Lucia. He was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Bingham.

Then, to show that Mrs. Bingham is not hte only prima donna in the family, he sang a humorous solo, "You Can't Play Every Instrument in the Band."

The last part of his entertainment consisted of impersonations in negro dialect, "Mrs. Rastus Johnson at the Wedding," and "The Georgia 'Possum Hunt," both selections being enjoyed by the public from the Victor talking machine records.

Before the concluding number the humorist turned into a serious channel of thought and for a few moments made some effective patriotic remarks. He explained why the American humorist has a place even in these days of distress and anxiety. He said we must have humor for self-preservation in order to retain a normality. The assertion that all amusement in America should be discontinued is German propaganda. Nothing would please Germany more than to see America mope as Russia is doing, for if we mope we are lost. We must have amusement to keep the morale of the nation. The place of the American humorist is to show that an evening's amusement of genuine fun can be given without an approach to vulgarity. Then he said, "The question is not, 'Can our soldiers make good at the front?' I know what the soldier will do. The question is, 'Am I worth fighting for?' Can we look the boys in the face when they return and say that we have done all we could? There is something I can do and I have found it. There is something you can do. Find it."

"Joy Night" was indeed "absolutely" unparalleled in the category of entertainment.

Congressman Foss Speaks. Following Mr. Bingham, Congressman Foss of the Tenth congressional district of Illinois, was introduced. H. C. Warner of Dixon acted as chair man. The congressman made an excellent speech on the manner in which America has reached her present state of preparedness, giving interesting information on the attitude of Germany toward the United States as far back as the Spanish-American war.

Congressman Foss is on the House committee on Foreign Affairs. He is now a candidate for the U. S. Senate.

Japanese Women Workers.
At Yokohama crews of women are kept by most of the native boarding house masters, in readiness to ship on any tramp coasting steamer that may be in want of hands. They do not go aloft, but for all the other work of a steamship, even that of stoking and trimming, they are said to be excellent. In their spare time on shore they frequently take on a coaling contract, at which laborious occupation, strange though it may seem, they are superior to men. Indeed, until quite recently the world's record for coaling an ironclad was held by a gang of Japanese "seawomen," all of whom were of small stature and under twenty-one years of age.

Killing Blue Devils.
While the "blues" might be classed with disease, they really deserve a corner all their own. If you are ever tormented by the blue devils, drop everything, if possible, and walk, walk, walk. Observe the people and things that you pass, and you will return in such a cheerful frame of mind that you'll wonder how you could have felt otherwise. One woman confided to me that if she ever has a troublesome problem to solve she does not think of it while doing her duties, but waits until she can walk in the open air. The exercise and the fresh air assist her to come to a quick and usually a wise decision.

Things That Remain.
Not what I have done but what I would do is to be measured, not the mistakes of others, but all their splendid successes is what I must remember. Not the failure of yesterday, but the plan for tomorrow is what I must bear in mind. Not the bitterness nor ingratitude nor the misunderstanding, but the permanence of love and wisdom shall dwell with me. Not the pain of the world, but the promise of happiness for all shall keep with me. Not evil, nor death, nor tears, nor any unhappy thing, but love and life and joy; these shall be my portion and at the last nothing can take them from me.—Exchange.

Divided City.
Lying on either side of the Danube, just at that point where it definitely sets south, Pest spreads itself over the flat sandy plain on the left bank, while Buda rambles over the series of small and steep hills which characterize the land on the right bank. Pest is modern in aspect. It is regularly laid out and presents a splendid frontage to the river. Buda, ancient and capricious, wanders in and out among the hills, finally shouldering its way up to the Blackberg, nearly four hundred feet above the river. Behind it all are the mountains, rising in great terraces, one behind another.

Although the British association does not meet this year, a conference of delegates of the corresponding societies, which is a part of the annual proceedings, took place at Burlington house. The owl, according to Professor Hopkinson, who presided, is the farmer's friend. From a tree where a barn owl had nested at Keswick were taken 114 "pellets," containing the skulls of 19 small rats, 126 long-tailed and short-tailed field mice, 69 shrews and three small birds (greenfinches), but no game. He suggested that owls and hawks should be preserved, and that rooks and wood pigeons be ruthlessly exterminated.—London Times.

Speaking Out.
I keep learning that there is nothing which reaches men's hearts like talking straight out the convictions and emotions of your innermost soul. Those who hear you may not agree with you, or they may not understand you fully, but something incalculable, something vital, passes. And as for a boy or a girl, it is one of the sorriest of mistakes to talk down to them; almost always your lad of fifteen thinks more simply, more fundamentally, than you do; and what he accepts as good coin is not facts or precepts, but feelings and convictions—life. And why shouldn't we speak out?—David Grayson.

Sun Dial Long Main Timekeeper.
The sun dial for centuries was the main timekeeper of the world, and it dates back to some time about 700 B. C. In Isaiah there is a reference to the sun dial, the earliest in existence. Here it is: "Behold I will bring again the shadow of the degrees which is gone down in the sun dial of Ahaz ten degrees backward." You may remember that this incident records the fact that King Hezekiah, sick and penitent, was shown that he would be restored to health again by this miracle in the action of the sun dial.

FOOD VIOLATORS BROUGHT TO JUSTICE

Over 2,000 cases of violations of the United States Food Administration rulings have been investigated during the past three months by the Bureau of Investigation and Enforcement operating under the Illinois Division of the Food Administration.

These violators included wholesale and retail grocers, owners of public eating places, bakers, and milk and feed distributors.

As a result of these hearings, $10,000 has been turned over to the American Red Cross by infractors who disciplined themselves for selling flour in excessive quantities or without the proper amount of substitute, selling too much sugar, serving more bread than they should with meals, exceeding their flour allotment, or overcharging for licensed commodities.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

On "Maximum Canning With Minimum Sugar."

"Maximum canning with minimum sugar" is the latest conservation slogan of the United States Food Administration.

Housewives are being urged to can all possible fruits and vegetables, but to use little or no sugar.

One of the suggestions is that fruit juices be bottled now and made into jellies next winter, when it is probable there will be a more plentiful supply of sugar on hand.

Canning without sugar will be successful if the ingredients are cooked twice as long as usual.

Bulletins on scientific methods of canning without sugar are issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, free of charge, and should be ordered by number. Following is the list of bulletins and the subjects with which they deal:

How to neutralize acid fruit juices with carbonate of lime, sterilize and bottle without sugar.—Bulletin 850.

How to sterilize fruit juice without sugar, bottle for jelly making, when sugar is more plentiful.—Bulletins 839 and 853.

How to make a tart fruit butter without sugar.—Bulletins 853 and 900.

By eating more perishables here at home we may save others from perishing "over there."

Abraham and Sarah.
The original name of the founder of the Israelitish race was Abram and by a special act of God it was changed to Abraham. In Genesis, Chapter 17, verses 3 to 6, it is recorded: "And Abram fell on his face; and God talked with him, saying, As for me behold, my servant is with thee, and thou shalt be a father of many nations. Neither shall thy name any more be called Abram, but thy name shall be Abraham; for a father of many nations have I made thee." This record of the change of name seems to imply some significance or motive in it, but scriptural commentators have never discovered it nor any difference in the meaning of the two names. As the name of Abraham's wife was at the same time changed from Sarai to Sarah the change of both names may have been intended to emphasize the solemnity of the occasion and the covenant then entered into. Genesis 17, verse 15, reads, "And God said unto Abraham, as for Sarai, thy wife, thou shalt not call her name Sarai, but Sarah shall her name be."

Her Name Linked With Andre's.
Miss Honoria Sneyd was an English lady who at one time was engaged to be married to Maj. John Andre, the young British officer who was implicated in the Benedict Arnold treason plot but who jilted him and became the second wife of Richard Edgeworth, father of Marian Edgeworth, the novelist. Before leaving England for America, and while still engaged to Miss Sneyd, Andre painted a miniature portrait of her which he carried with him and had on his person when captured. After his imprisonment he wrote to a friend: "I have been taken prisoner by the Americans and stripped of everything except the picture of Honoria, which I concealed in my mouth; preserving that I yet think myself fortunate." Andre was executed October 2, 1780, but his engagement to Miss Sneyd had been broken some time before. Marian Edgeworth was the daughter of Richard Edgeworth by a first marriage, and after the death of his first wife, he married Honoria Sneyd.

Peaches Extra Special

I have a new shipment of extra fancy canned peaches that I offer for a few days at special prices.

The peach crop is very small this season and the prices will be very high for fresh fruit. The Texas crop is all marketed and most of the Arkansas is gone. Michigan and New York's crops are only going to be about one-fifth of a crop.

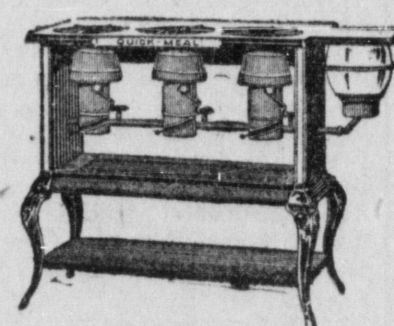

The sugar supply is very low and it looks as if it will be more so before the new crop.

If you would like to have a dozen cans for winter, order now as our prices are exceptional for conditions as they are today.
